Feasibility study report definition

POSSIBLE ☒
IMPOSSIBLE ☐

- Feasibility is a process where the developer hires consultants to conduct legal due diligence, study the market and conduct marketability research, initiate a design process, initiate the permit process, arrange for equity and debt, and evaluate project costs and returns
- Project is considered financially feasible when the return on the project (or investment) equals or exceeds the required return of the developer (or investor)
- Few measures of financial success:
 - Internal rate of return (IRR) via discounted cash flow (DCF) analysis
 - Cash on cash yield
 - Equity multiple
 - Debt service coverage (DSCR)

Example of feasibility study report

Feasibility study: Video Library System.

1. Description of problem

Chong Hik Company is a small business enterprise that loans video to its customer. It runs by one manager, two cashiers and one handyman. Currently the company has 518 members and 2000 videos.

This company has recording details of its members and videos manually on paper. It uses a lot of papers and files to keep details of the members and videos.

Registering new member and video is very slow. Cashier has to provide member with "Member Registration Form" for customer to fill in and store it in "Member" file. Video details are recorded on paper "Video Registration Form" and store it in "Video" file. Records stored in file are messy, easily lost and faded easily.

2. Objectives

- Business-related objectives:
- To make registration process faster.
- To save time / resources.

Computer-related objectives:

- To create a database.
- Easy editing of records
- Fast search of records.

Description of existing solution

Member registration:

Process - Add Member

A form called "Member Registration Form" is given to customers who are interested to join Video Library Member. Customer fills in the paper form and completed form will be filed in "Member" file. Below is the "Member Registration Form":
